Walk

Approx 5 miles

Starts (& finishes) in car park of Sulgrave Manor

Approx ¼ of walk is on road; some farm tracks; approx. 1/3 is fields

(note, path numbers are only on map below, they are not on sign posts.)

Turn right out of car park

Either walk down bridleway AY4 or path AY5 (depends what is in field that AY5 crosses)

Both paths meet at the railway embankment.

Tunnel under embankment may be closed, in which case walk up path to the left, cross embankment & down the other side.

The railway embankment tunnel was 'temporarily' closed in 2015 and so a fence may have to be climbed over to access the embankment (gate to leave the embankment is open). The fence has wooden horizontal bars.

Continue along path AY4 – path is on right hand side of fence. It may be easier to walk in field and then climb back onto path where it becomes path SD17.

Follow this path across a garden and turn left onto path SD15.

Follow path until it reaches road.

Turn left onto road and follow until reach signposted footpath on left.

Follow path AY3 to railway embankment and go under.

On other side of railway embankment go through gate to left hand side of hedge. Keep this hedge to right & follow up the field to road.

Stileometer

There are 6 stiles but 3 can be bypassed

Inclineometrics

At one point we have to climb onto a railway embankment. This is possibly a vertical change of 50ft, up a zig & a zag path (& down the other side).

There are two other places where there is a gentle incline, path SD16 & AY3 until it reaches the road.

SULGRAVE

The name Sulgrave, is derived from the old English 'Sulh' meaning a channel or passage, and 'graeaf', meaning a pit, or trench.

There has been a village situated on this site for over a thousand years of recorded history. It stands on a low spur in a broad, deep cut valley, the headwaters of the river Tow or Tove.

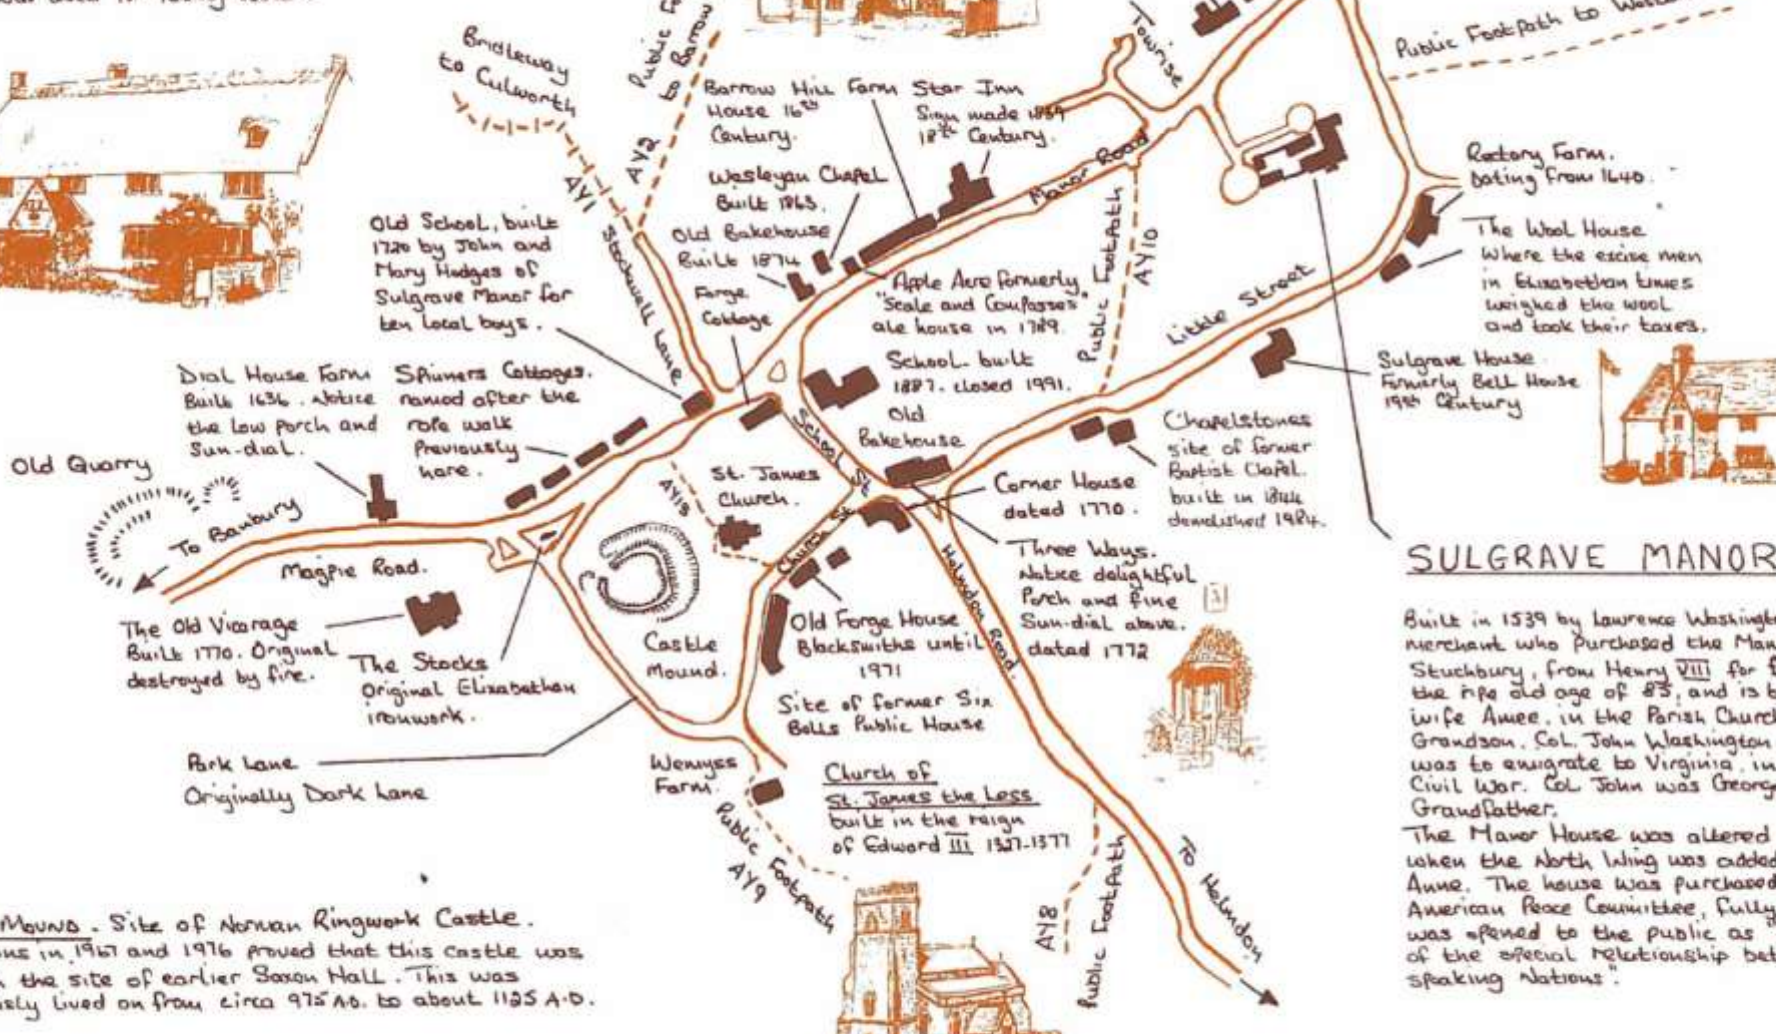

This area of Northamptonshire stands on a limestone belt stretching from the Dorset Coast to Whitby in Yorkshire.

Sulgrave is basically a stone village with evidence of local quarrying within the village. Helmdon Stone was the main material, and a close scrutiny of the older houses show that this was in many cases undressed. The quoins, sills, joints and lintels were mainly of Hornton Stone, and in certain cases a dark red iron sandstone from Eydou was used for facing walls.

The Sulgrave Parish Council wish to thank all who have been involved in the production of this leaflet and in the waymarking of paths.

CASTLE MOUND - Site of Norman Ringwork Castle. Excavations in 1967 and 1976 proved that this castle was built on the site of earlier Saxon Hall. This was continuously lived on from circa 975 A.D. to about 1125 A.D.

SULGRAVE MANOR

Built in 1539 by Lawrence Washington, a wealthy wool merchant who purchased the Manors of Sulgrave and Stuchbury, from Henry VIII for £24,14,10d. He lived until the ripe old age of 83, and is buried, with his second wife Anne, in the Parish Church. His great great Grandson, Col. John Washington, probably born at Sulgrave was to emigrate to Virginia, in 1656 after the English Civil War. Col John was George Washington's Great Grandfather.

The Manor House was altered by John Hodges in 1710 when the North Wing was added in the style of Queen Anne. The house was purchased in 1913 by the Anglo-American Peace Committee, fully restored, and in 1921 was opened to the public as 'A permanent reminder of the special relationship between the two English speaking Nations'.

Swift

Banbury Lane marks the route of a medieval road. (It was believed by some to be the line of a more ancient trackway). In medieval times it linked the market towns of Banbury and Northampton.

Swallow

There are clear traces of "ridge and furrow" in this field, the results of ploughing strips of land in medieval days. In medieval times, such strip cultivation covered most of the lowlands, up to enclosure in the 18th Century.

All rights of way in this Parish have definitive numbers preceded by the letters AY. Please use these numbers when reporting problems or obstructions. All have been waymarked; look out for the discs. (C)

Ash

The bridleway AY1 passes two former mills - a windmill and a water-mill, of which the millpond remains. Here, in 1888, Messrs. Boulton and Watt installed a 3hp. steam engine - one of the first to grind corn. Both mills are now private residences.

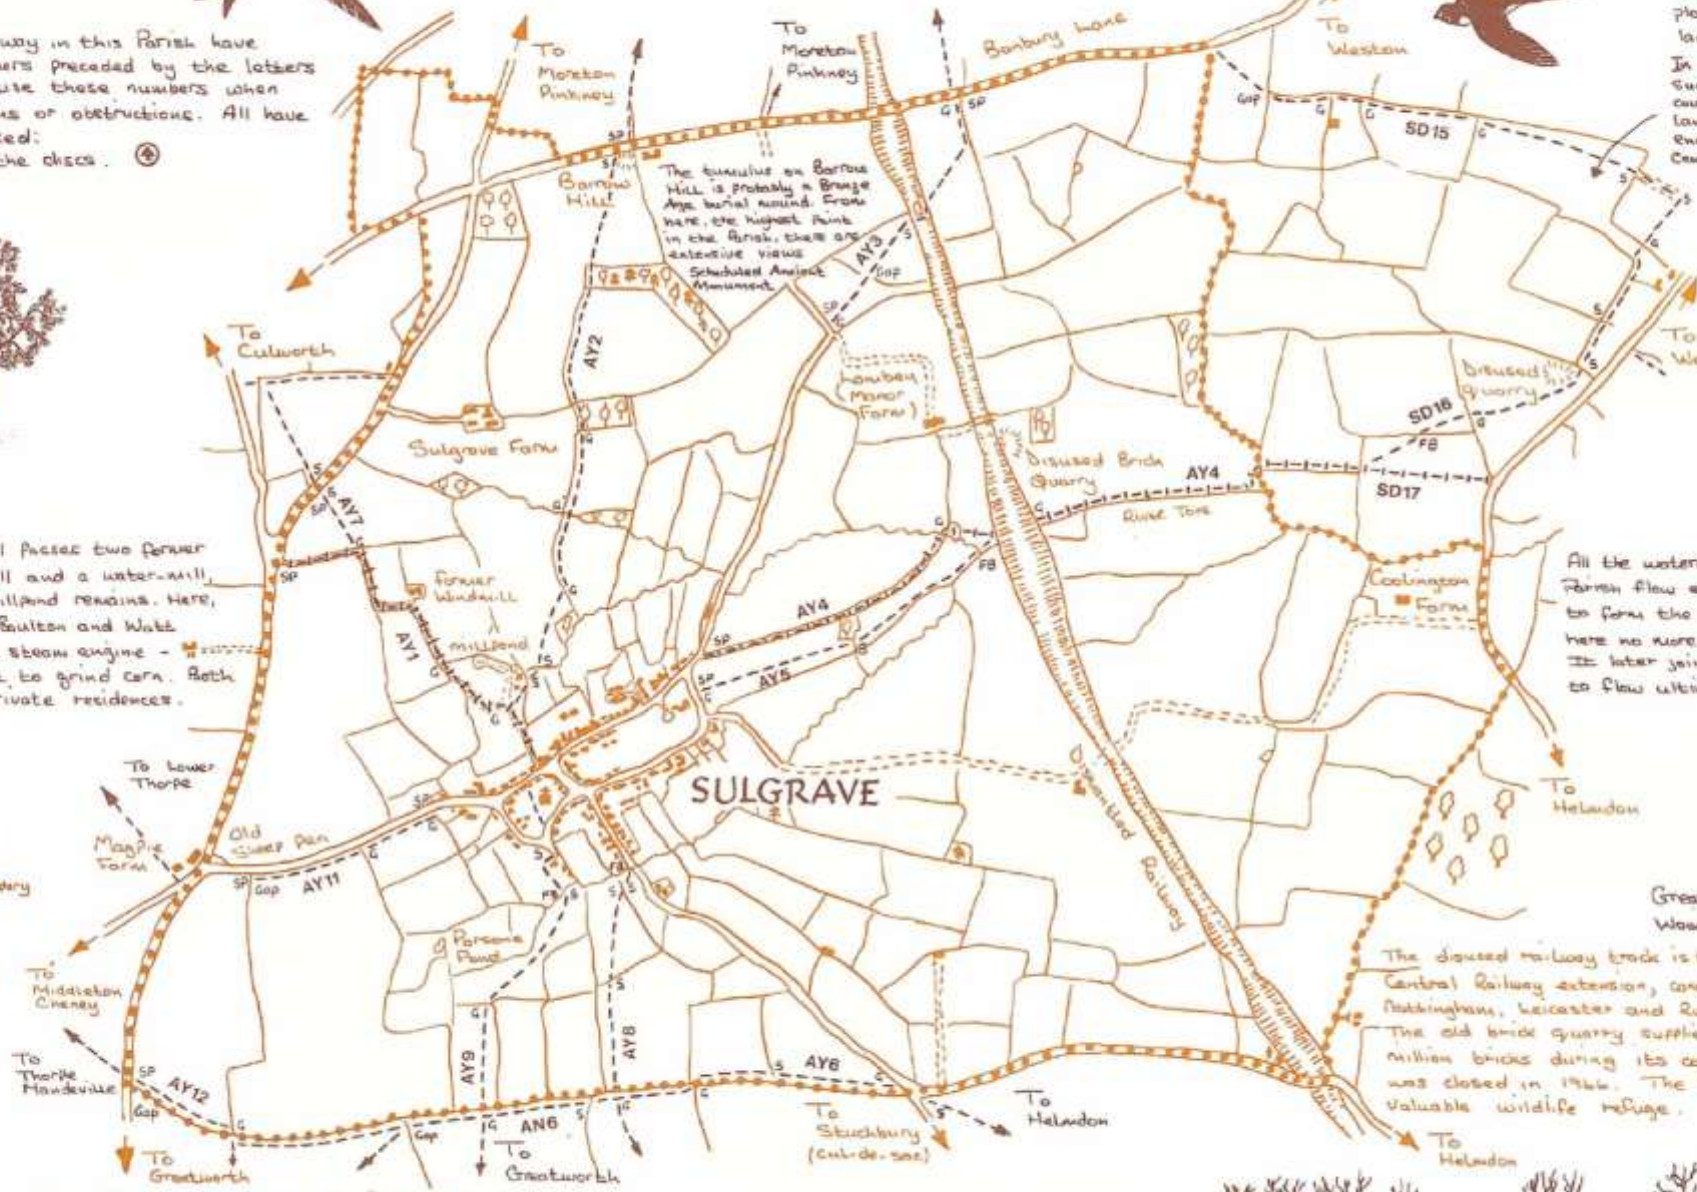

Pollard Willows

All the watercourses in this Parish flow eastwards, uniting to form the River Tove (or Taw), here no more than a small stream. It later joins the Great Ouse, to flow ultimately into the Wash.

Great Scaled Woodpecker

The disused railway track is that of the Great Central Railway extension, completed in 1899 to link Nottingham, Leicester and Rugby to Marylebone. The old brick quarry supplied some twelve million bricks during its construction. The line was closed in 1964. The land is now a valuable wildlife refuge.

The footpaths between the Greatworth and Stuchbury roads follow a hedge which is much older than most in the Parish (which date from the 18th Century). It is double in some parts, and contains at least fourteen species of tree and shrub, and may be five hundred years old or more.
